would not have been. It stands an unyielding protest against all priesteraft and kinggraft, a pledge of the coming glory, when all oppression shall be destroyed by the word of the Lord." The assemblage then quietly dispersed. The box contained a Bible, presented by the Washington City Bible society, a copy of Kostlin's "Luther." Stalk's "Year Book," the "Augaburg Teacher." "Luther's Catechism," and other books and Lutheran papers, a copy of THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN and the other city papers, the blue book of the United States, and a history of the movement which culminated in the erection of the states.

which culminated in the erection of the statue.

The statue is a fine piece of German workmanship. It is an exact counterpart of the central figure of the world-renowned group at Worms, Germany. In it Luther appears in colessal bronze about eleven feet six inches high and standing upon a pedestal of granite nearly sixteen feet in height. He is standing eroet, with face and eyes raised, and end in the ministerial robes of his time. He bears upon the left arm a closed Bible, upon which his closed right hand reals. The right foot is advanced, and he is said to be appealing to God, with upturned face, for the triumph of the gospel. The total cost of this grand work of art will be about $7,000.

To Mr. Charles A. Schieren, of New York city, belongs the honor of having first surgesting the idea of erecting a statute of Luther in this country and on the fine site in front of the Memorial church, which will hereafter be known as "Luther Place." The sentiment grew rapidly, and the Luther Menument association was organized. On Feb. 14, 1883, the first call was made for funds. The response from all quarters was so generous that in less than two months. statue.

sentiment grew rapidly, and the Luther Menument association was organized. On Feb. 14, 1883, the first call was made for funds. The response from all quarters was so generous that in less than two mouths afterward the statue was ordered by college from Lanchhammer, Germany. The sociaty originally intended to creet it Nov. In said, when the 400th anniversary of the har of Luther was celebrated, but it was found inpossible to complete it by that date.

"Luther Place," where the statute is located, is owned by the Memorial church. After the unveiling it will be deeded to the Luther Statute association, a bill for the incorporation of which has passed the house and is pending before the senate.

Among the many designs presented for the pedestal that gotten up by Messre. Class and Schultz, of this city, was accepted. It is approached by two broad steps, and bears no inscription besides the simple name of the reformer. This firm rendered their services gratuitously in honor of their distinguished fellow-countrymen. The pedestal was constructed by A. H. Jouvensl, also of Washington. The society has tendered its heartiest thanks to Secretary Lincoln, Col. Casey, Mr. Jacob Vichmeyer, and Mr. Brodderick, of the state department, for aid rendered; also, to the North German Lloyd Steamship company for transporting the statue free from Hamburg; to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company for bringing it to this city without cost, and to Messre. Springman & Bro., of Washington, for city transportation.

Preceding the statue ceremonies by two days another celebration will occur here that will be of general interest to Lutherans everywhere. The tenth anniversary of the Lutheran Memorial church will be celebrated to morrow morning and afternoon, as announced in the programme above.

The church was founded as "a memorial of freedom and peace" soon after the close of the late war. The free-sent system was at once adopted and has been in vogue ever since. Rev. Mr. Butler was the founder of the church. It began as a mission at the corner of Sixth and P streets, and was known then as the Church of the Fatheriand. It was intended to meet the needs of the German-Americans of Washington. At that time the membership was barely fifty persons. Since that time it has increased to over 300.

The present church building is constructed of Seneca brownstone, with a neat chapel attached. It is estimated.

All of the seats are cushioned, and the windows are chapel shaped, with merging haes of stained glass in antique designs. A friend of the church is organized now in expending $7,000 to complete its unfinished towers. Among the hatberns abroad the califol is known as the "Gem Church of Washington." They feel a deep interest in its welfare, because the money expended upon it was contributed by people all over the country. The church property is valued at $100,000.

ONE MORE DEFEAT.

The Athletics Again Find the Washington's to be "Very Ensy Men."

The Athletics had a picnic with the home nine yesterday, outplaying them in the field and batting them out of sight.

The score of earned runs, however, shows that most of the base hits on Barr were made after chances had been given to retige the side. Hawkes surprised every one by three costly errors, while the wretched fielding of Kiley and Yewell gave three runs in the sixth inning, two men three runs in the sixth inning, two men making the circuit of the bases on single base hits. Wills alone did any work in the outfield. Peor base running again came in to cut down the score of the home nine. Helly ought to station a man at third base with a club and knock down the men who persist in trying to run home on infield hits when no hands are out. At least seven runs have been lost in this Athletic series by this stupid business. To turn from adverse criticism, it is pleasing to note the fine batting of Fennelly, whose rattling three-baser brought in two runs in the fifth inning, and the general fine play of Humphries and Fennelly. Morgan caught perfectly, but was rather off in throwing, while Hawkes redeemed his errors by a splendid running catch and good stops. Some very sharp work was done in the seventh and eighth innings by Hawkes and Morgan, and Wills made a great threw-in, cutting off Corey at home plate after a three-base lit.

The base play of Stovey and Stricker, the catching of Milligan, the brilliant work of all the Athletic pitfeld, and the splendid batting of Corey and Milligan are worthy of mention. The score follows:

Gens. Roscerans and Longstreet, left Fredericksburg at D o'clock this morning for Chancellorsville and the Wilderness, The first point reached was the junction of the oid turnpike and the Catharine Furnace reads. From this point Gen. Jackson started on his celebrated flank movement, which resulted in Hooker's defeat at Chancellorsville. Rev. James P. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church berg, and at that time an aid of Jackson, pointed out the place and described the counsel of Gens. Jackson and Lee in the woods that night, over a small fire kindled by themselves, and also the subsequent movements of Jackson, which resulted in bringing him on Hooker's flank near the Wilderness church. From this spot the party proceeded to the point on the turnpike, about three-quarters of a mile above Chancellorsville, where Jackson received his wound. Rev. Mr. Smith gave a vivid description of Jackson's movements here and of the manner in which he received his wound. Gen. Jackson told Mr. Smith that Gen. Rhodes, on Sunday, asked permission to withdraw his line in order to reform. Jackson, impatient to get to the United States ford and cut Hooker off, refused and ordered A. P. Hill to reform the line. While this was being done he rode rapidly to the front until he exims to within a few yards of a detachment of the 1st Massachusetts, who fired one or two shots at the party. Jackson turnod back and rode to the right of the road, and was met by a volley from a company of his own men. He then rode over, as yet unwounded, to the left of the road, where he was received by another volley from another detachment of his own froops, which wounded him in three places. Mr. Smith's voice grow husky as he described the difficulty of getting Gen. Jackson fell.

A TRIPLE EXECUTION.

Three Colored Men Hung at Greenville, S. C .- All Were Prepared to Die.

GREENVILLE, S. C., May 16,-Riley Anderson and James and Alfred McCullough, father and son, all colored, were hung in the jail yard to-day, in the presence of the thirty-six witnesses allowed by the state law, several clergymen, two detachments of the Greenville Butler Guards, and the representatives of the press. All the morning the prisoners held religious services in their cells, and at 12 o'clock marched to the gallows, under charge of Sheriff Gilreath, escorted by the clergymen and the military. After the reli-gious ceremonies, consisting of hymns, pray-ors, and scripture selections, the sheriff asked ors, and scripture selections, the sheriff asked the prisoners if they desired to speak to the as-semblage. Both the McCulloughs said, in tones scarcely audible, they were prepared to die and they were going straight to the arms of Jesus. Riley Auderson said clearly and dis-tinctly: "I am to be hanged for the murder of Lou Griffith, but I do not know anything about why I am to be hanged or what other records swors to about me. I am ready to die people awore to about me. I am ready to die and forgive all." After religious services, again by the colored minister, the sheriff ad-justed the nooses.

Anderson's face were a pleasant smile, but both the McCulloughs seemed terribly frightened. At 12:20 the drop fell. James McCullough died in eight minutes. Alfred in eleven, and Anderson in sixteen minutes. The bodies were left hanging for twenty-seven minutes. Anderson's neck was broken and both the McCulloughs died from strangulation, the can ever their faces helps sate lation, the cap over their faces being sat-urated at the mouth with blood. The rela-tives took charge of the bodies.

The cool and exhibitating atmosphere, the wild mountain season; and fine drives, the baths and invaluable medicinal waters, with good fare, render a season at Bock Econ a delight not soon to be forgotien. [From James E. Fitch, esq., Washington, D. C.] * * My family and friends who spent the past season at Rock Enon Springs unite with one accord in praising the piace, the regularity of its recurring evening chieriathments, the usual good order, the charming mountain seenery, the invigorating air, all of which, together with the virtue of the "senling waters," combine to make this resort one of the most popular in the country. [From Samuel Nor-ment, esq., Washington, D. C.1
